Jalapeno Charters
2018/2019 Season

Grenadines to the Virgin Islands in the Fall 2018

Jalapeno had a great trip to Grenada, which will be our starting point for the start of the fall charter season. She is currently hauled at Grenada Marine and will go back into the water on November 14 for the lucky folks who booked our Thanksgiving charter.

Jalapeno at Marigot Bay, St. Lucia on her spring trip to Grenada

Between Thanksgiving and the Christmas holidays, Jalapeno will be heading back north from the Grenadines to the Virgin Islands to pick-up two January charters prior to a ski break. We want to make this a leisurely trip, but would love to have you join us along the way. Here are some possibilities:

Late November -- the Grenadines
Early December -- St. Lucia and Martinique
Early to Mid December -- Dominica and Guadeloupe
Mid to Later December -- St. Kitts to St. Martin
Late December -- St. Martin to the Virgin Islands

Virgin Islands to the Grenadines

No specific dates yet so we can work with you to put together an itinerary what fits for everyone. In the interest of keeping it a leisurely trip, only one or two of these segments will be chartered.

Virgins to the Grenadines in the Spring 2019

Staying with our plans to have Jalapeno do more sailing in the Lesser Antilles (and be safely out of the hurricane zone for the summer), we will again be doing a spring trip down the island chain to the Grenadines. These will be April and May dates ending with Grenada in June.

Let me know if any of this is of interest to you with an email to ray@jalapenocharters.com.

Captain Ray
Jalapeno Charters

JALAPEÑO
Yacht Charters
www.jalapenocharters.com